

Step by Step Guide to EB1 Visa: A Comprehensive Overview

The EB1 visa is an employment-based visa that allows foreign nationals to work in the United States in the fields of science, art, education, business, or athletics. This visa is a great option for individuals who have achieved extraordinary abilities in their chosen fields.

The EB1 visa is divided into two categories:

- EB1A: Extraordinary Ability This category is for individuals who have demonstrated extraordinary ability in science, art, education, business, or athletics.
- EB1B: Outstanding Researcher or Professor This category is for individuals who are outstanding researchers or professors with at least three years of experience in research or teaching.

To be eligible for an EB1 visa, you must meet the following criteria:

- EB1A: Extraordinary Ability

- You must have sustained national or international acclaim in your field.
- You must have at least one of the following:
 - A major award or recognition for outstanding achievement in your field.
 - At least three peer-reviewed articles published in major trade journals or scientific journals.
 - Evidence of original scientific or scholarly research contributions.
 - Evidence of original artistic work that has been exhibited or performed.
 - Evidence of exceptional achievement in business, such as a high level of responsibility or significant financial impact.
 - Evidence of exceptional achievement in athletics, such as Olympic medals or world championships.

- EB1B: Outstanding Researcher or Professor

- You must be an outstanding researcher or professor with at least three years of experience in research or teaching.
- You must have published significant research findings in peer-reviewed journals.

- You must have received a significant grant or award for your research.
- You must have been invited by a US university or research institution to conduct research or teach.

In addition to meeting the eligibility criteria, you will also need to submit the following documentation with your EB1 visa application:

- EB1A: Extraordinary Ability

- A detailed curriculum vitae or resume.
- Evidence of national or international acclaim, such as awards, press clippings, or letters of recommendation from experts in your field.
- A copy of your passport.
- Two passport-sized photos.

- EB1B: Outstanding Researcher or Professor

- A detailed curriculum vitae or resume.
- A copy of your PhD or other terminal degree.
- A list of your published research findings.
- Copies of grants or awards you have received for your research.
- A letter of invitation from a US university or research institution.
- A copy of your passport.
- Two passport-sized photos.

The EB1 visa application process is complex and time-consuming. It is important to start the process early and to seek the guidance of an experienced immigration lawyer.

The first step is to file Form I-140, Petition for Alien Worker, with the USCIS. This form includes information about you, your employer, and your job offer.

Once Form I-140 has been approved, you will need to file Form I-485, Application to Register Permanent Residence or Adjust Status, with the USCIS. This form includes information about you, your family, and your immigration history.

You will also need to submit a medical examination and biometrics with your Form I-485.

If your Form I-485 is approved, you will be granted an EB1 visa. This visa will allow you to work in the United States for an unlimited period of time.

The EB1 visa is a great option for foreign nationals who have achieved extraordinary abilities in their chosen fields. The application process is complex and time-consuming, but it is worth it if you are able to obtain this visa.

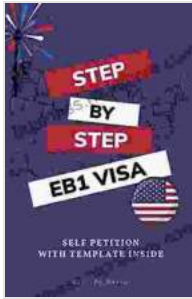

If you are interested in applying for an EB1 visa, I recommend that you seek the guidance of an experienced immigration lawyer.
